Reg G Disclosure

Management believes that Adjusted EBITDA provides useful information to investors because it is an indicator of the strength and performance of our ongoing business operations, including our ability to fund capital expenditures, acquisitions and operations and to incur and service debt. While depreciation and amortization are considered operating costs under generally accepted accounting principles, these expenses primarily represent non-cash current period allocation of costs associated with long-lived assets acquired in prior periods. Similarly, the expense recorded for share-based compensation does not represent a current or future period cash cost. Adjusted EBITDA, defined as operating income excluding the costs of depreciation, amortization and share-based compensation, is a calculation commonly used as a basis for investors, analysts and credit rating agencies to evaluate and compare the periodic and future operating performance and value of companies within the payment processing industry.

Additionally, management analyzes historical results adjusted for certain items that are incremental to the baseline of the business. Generally these items include gains or losses associated with the sale of the business assets or operations, market development costs, foreign exchange translations, discontinued operations and other similar items. Management believes the exclusion of these items provides a better basis for evaluating the underlying business unit performance.
